Teaching Emphasis and Minor

For students wishing to pursue a teaching career, a History Teaching Emphasis is recommended. In addition to the 35 credits required in the Secondary Teacher Education Program, students must complete 45 credits, maintain a 3.0 GPA in General Education and History Courses, and obtain a minor. Students can also obtain a History Teaching Minor instead of doing a Teaching Emphasis. A History Teaching Minor requires 30 credits of upper and lower division history courses.

Classics Options

An academic minor is available in the field of Classical Studies with four areas of emphasis: Classical Civilization, Latin Language, Greek Language, and Latin Teaching. From the ancient civilizations of the Mediterranean area derived our government, literature, sciences, and laws. The classical world is the backdrop of the modern world. In association with various majors, the Classics Minor is designed to enhance intellectual abilities and practical skills.
